

Call For Community Partners: All venues with and without art

Call for Location/Venue and Art with Location
Guidelines - PDXWLF 2023

Open June 30 - September 23, 2022 for venues wanting to host an artist and venues with art

The Portland Winter Light Festival(PDXWLF) will take place February 3 - 11, 2023 and will feature pop-up art installations in windows, storefronts, and public spaces throughout the city of Portland. Each year, the event hosts upwards of 200,000 visitors and guests who come out to explore light-art installations throughout the city, visit local businesses, and celebrate art and community during the darkest time of year. The nonprofit event is family-friendly and is presented to the public for free. The mission of PDXWLF is to build community by bringing digital art to inclusive audiences while invigorating Portland in the winter.

This call is for Community Partners - local businesses, design firms, retail locations, organizations, art collectives, makerspaces, and more - that have a location or venue to host an artist and artists that have a location for their installation. One installation per application, multiple applications are ok. One designated contact per application.

As in previous years, installations can take the form of light based art installations or sculptures in windows, colorful and creative outdoor lighting, installations in your own yard or neighborhood, video projections, and more.

We encourage artists to find their own venue to show their installations. Light up your buildings, exteriors, houses and yards. Find a local business that would like to showcase your work. Ask your neighbors to be involved and create a community of light around your PDXWLF exhibition.

PDXWLF will work to match artists to available venues. It is possible that we may not be able to match an artist with your venue.

The festival takes place over nine days. We request that when possible, all art in pop-up locations be on throughout the duration of the festival. Much of the outdoor art placed at anchor sites (World Trade Center, Pioneer Courthouse Square & The Electric Blocks) will be on only during the Fri/Sat of the weekends.

Fees

New this year, we are charging a minimum $250 participation fee for our business partners and venues wishing to participate as a venue in the festival. Please see the outline of fees below. The festival is a community-supported event presented for free to the public each year. The fees cover a portion of the costs associated with planning, organizing, and promoting the festival as a whole, and represent a financial commitment on the part of the venue. The festival drives tens of thousands of guests out each night to explore the city and view art in local business windows, and provides critical economic and cultural stimulation during the slow winter months.

There will be fee waivers available for non-profits, artist collectives, small for-profit businesses, BIPOC-owned businesses, and artists that have experienced hardship during the pandemic or otherwise have a compelling reason to request a waiver. If you would like to request a fee waiver for festival participation, please check "requesting fee waiver" on the application form. We do not wish to exclude any enthusiastic participants because of financial reasons, so please email art@pdxwlf.com with the subject line "requesting fee waiver" and the reason you are requesting the waiver. We will review the requests on a case by case basis and plan to be generous with waiver offerings.

Frequently Asked Questions

Q: Can I choose the PDXWLF Artist that will show at my venue?

No, our art team will be selecting artists for placement in potential venues. Artists will be selected for venues that do not already have their own artists on a case by case basis based on availability, logistics, and visibility from the street. Artwork is family-friendly. It is likely we will not be able to place artists in every venue that applies.

Q: Can I choose to show my own artist at my venue?

Yes, we encourage venues to show their own artists! Please fill out the "Art with Location" application form.

Q: Will the piece be a large video projection on my building?

No, we wish! Large projection pieces cost tens of thousands of dollars and we do not have the resources to do this scale of work in multiple venues. We'd love to see these pieces all over Portland, but we'll need a lot more support to make that happen. If you are set on something like this we can pair you with a local projection company and artist that can make your dreams come true.

Q: If I want to pay the artist directly to commission a bigger piece, can I do that?

Yes, absolutely! Please let us know asap what you are looking for and your budget. If possible, we will connect you with an artist.

Q: Why does it take you so long to choose the artists and place the artists?

We receive hundreds of submissions and need to review them all very carefully to determine if the proposals are sound and what best fits where. We ask lots of questions of the venues and the artists to figure out the flow and how the pieces work together.

Q: When is my fee due?

Once we accept a location and/or have an artist to place in that location we will send you an invoice and link for the participation fee.

Q: I have an art piece I'd like to show at a confirmed location, (like my business, a local coffee shop, or my backyard) what form should I fill out?

Great! You should fill out this form: Fill out this form \(Location with Art\)

Q: I am an artist and would like to show my work at PDXWLF, what form should I fill out?

Please fill out the Call For Art form.

Q: I have a question that isn't addressed here.

Please reach out to Chris Herring and Misty Post at art@pdxwlf.com before August 20th in order for the art team to have time to respond.
